LONDON EXPECTS RAIDS BY ZEPPELINS

Allies and Germans Entrench Within 100 Yards of Each Other

PRUSSIAN CASUALTIES EXCEED 211,000

TEUTONS ACCOMPLISH NOTHING IN THE WEEKS OF DESPERATE FIGHTING

LONDON, October 13.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—While the infantry of the opposing armies in northern France were entrenching continuously, in places within a hundred yards of each other, and the troops of the Allied armies were calling out taunts to the Germans, and daring them to come out and fight, the cavalry of both armies was extremely active. This report came from the battlefield last night, and adds that a detachment of German cavalry was led into ambush yesterday near Lens by a ruse and compelled to retire in disorder with loss.

SUPERIOR GERMAN FORCE ROUTED

A small party of French cavalry was sent out to reconnoiter before a prepared position, and encountered a superior force of German cavalry, which gave pursuit. The French simulated retreat until they had led the enemy into the fire of the troops concealed in the ambush, who repulsed the pursuing force.

Just in rear of the line occupied by the Allied armies, there is an excellent grape crop now being harvested.

The weather conditions are ideal.

ALLIES LEFT THING STRONGER THAN EVER

Advices to the Daily Mail from its correspondent behind the French lines report that the positions of the Allied on the left wing are now stronger than ever.

The Germans have tenaced this line by constant attacks, which have been unsuccessful, and their forces are getting hopelessly scattered.

After weeks of furious fighting they have accomplished nothing. The Amsterdam correspondent of the Central News Agency reports that the German army attacking Antwerp lost 45,000 men in capturing Forts Waelhem and St. Catherine.

BRITISH ARE CENTERING UPON OSTEND

The whereabouts of the British reinforcements sent to France can only be conjectured, as no information is given out at the war office. It is believed, however, that there is a considerable force now in the vicinity of Ostend.

Recruiting is again being pushed in England, the need of more men being recognized.

ALLIES HOLD GROUND IN FACE OF ATTACKS

PARIS, October 13.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The war office announced last night that there was nothing particular to report since the last announcement.

Violent attacks had occurred during the day at various points along the line, the report says, but the Allies had not lost ground anywhere and had made some few gains.

The official announcement given out earlier in the day said:

CAVALRY ENGAGEMENTS CONTINUE

"Cavalry engagements continue near La Basse, Estaires and Hazebrouck.

"Between Arras and the river Oise the enemy's attempted attacks have failed, notably between Lassigny and Roye.

"In the center some progress is being made, between Soissons and Verdun.

"In the Vosges, a night attack by the enemy south of St. Die has been repulsed."

SNOW IMPEDES OPERATIONS IN ALSACE

The last advices say the French are advancing in Alsace, but that the operations in that district are impeded by snow hills.

Another German aeroplane dropped bombs between two crowded railroad trains leaving the Northern station, but the bombs failed to explode.

GERMANS ARE IN BAD PLIGHT

PETROGRAD, October 13.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—An official announcement last night says that fighting has begun on the left bank of the Vistula in the direction of Ivan-gorod.

Elsewhere the situation is reported as unchanged. Russian cavalry has emerged from the defiles of the Carpathian Mountains into the plains of Hungary.

The great losses sustained have compelled the German government to revoke all exemptions from military service.

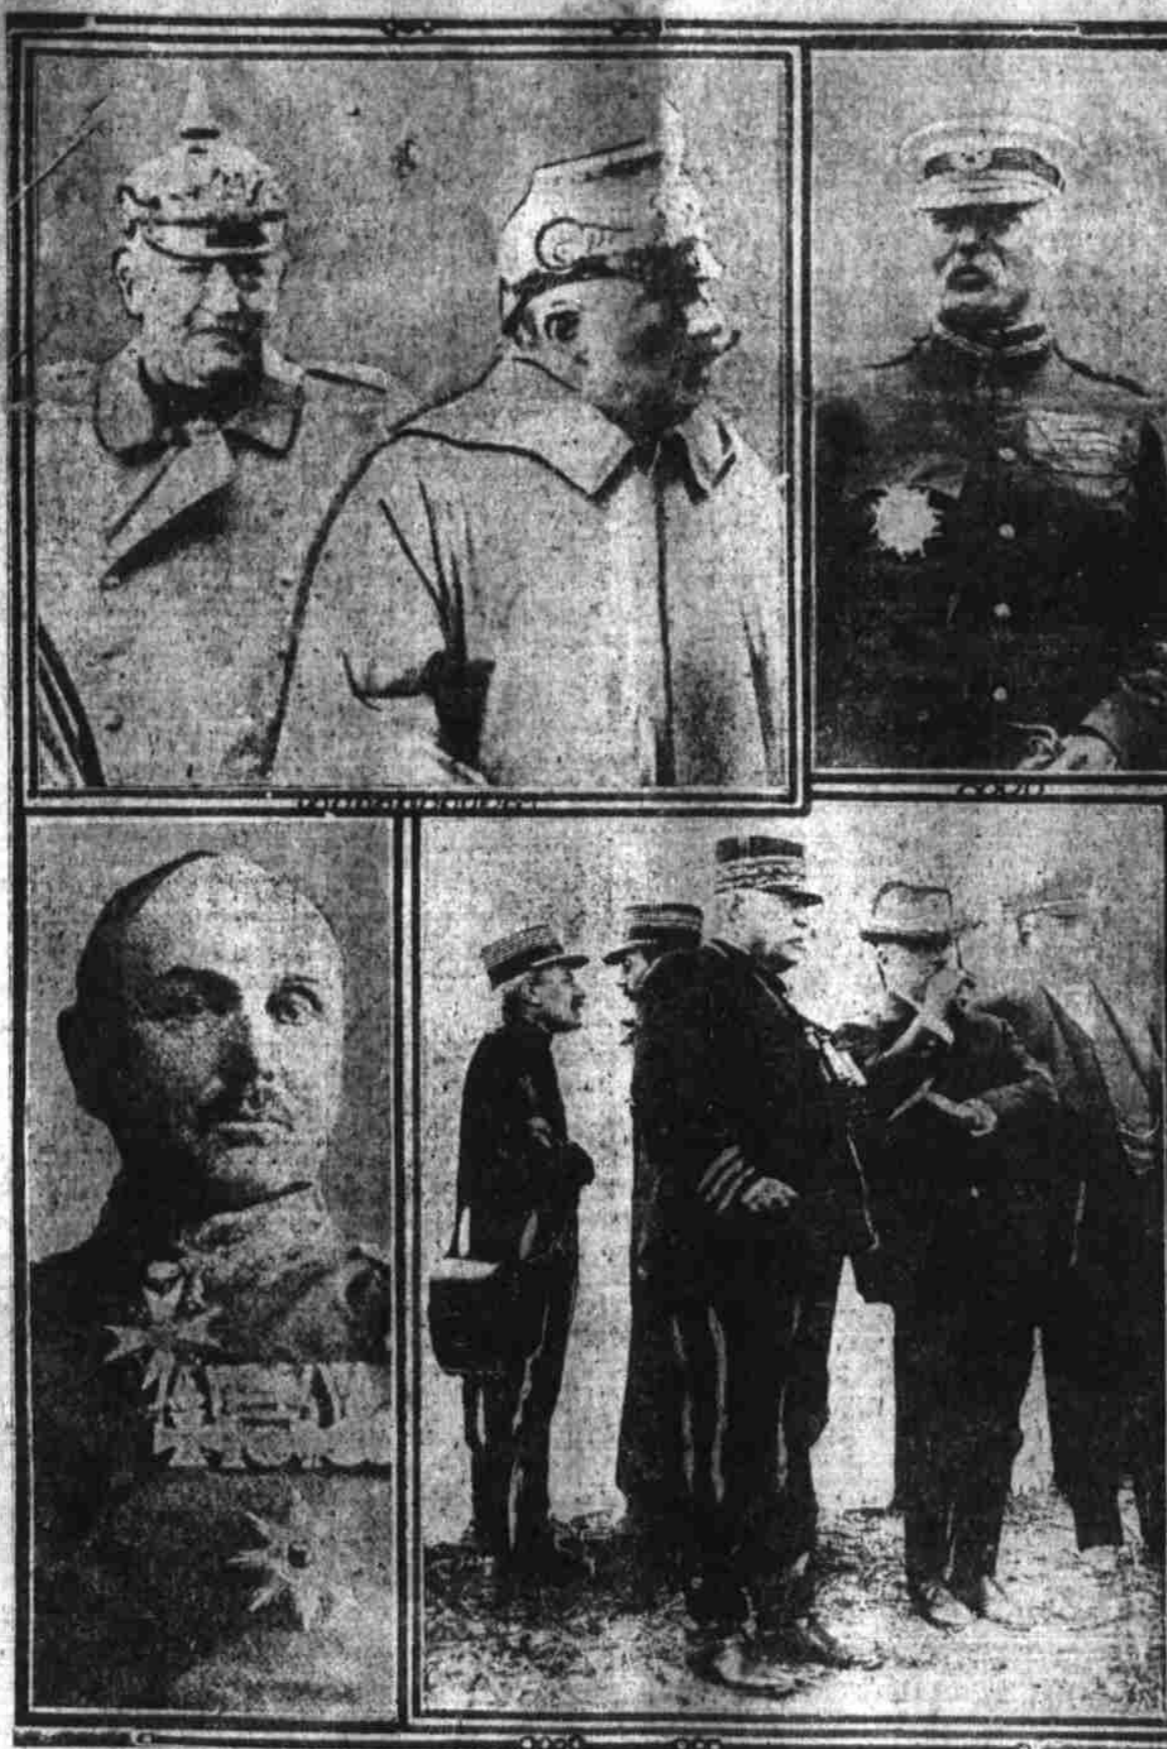

The shortage in equipment has resulted in an order to bury dead German soldiers without shoes or uniform.

PRUSSIAN LOSSES ENORMOUS

LONDON, October 13.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—The enormous total of 211,000 killed, wounded and missing men, among the Prussian troops, is contained in forty-four official casualty lists published in Berlin. This does not include the losses among the Bavarians, Saxons or Wurtembergians.

BRITISH WAR OFFICE WARNS LONDONERS TO LOOK OUT FOR BOMBS

LONDON, October 13.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—In view of the proximity of the German army at Antwerp to the English coast, the government has anticipated airship raids by warning all Londoners to take to their cellars in the event they hear any shooting.

The measures adopted by the war department officials to repulse any attempted attacks on England by German aircraft, have not been divulged.

ANTWERP TO BE PERMANENT BASE

British military experts believe it is the intention of Germany to make a permanent stronghold at Antwerp in order to hold Belgium during the further fighting in France.

This, it is pointed out not only will enable the Germans to protect their line of communications in rear against attack will give Germany a position very close to England.

LARGE GERMAN FORCES CONCENTRATING

The correspondent of the London Times in northern France reports that strong German columns of all arms are passing through the town of Bailleul, in the Department of Nord, in Belgium, where the Germans are concentrating in large numbers the town of Ypres, about ten miles northeast of Bailleul.

This correspondent also reports that German cavalry have been seen in many places within twenty miles of Dunk the Straits of Dover.

BERLIN REPORTS FRENCH REVERSES

In an official wireless report by way of Amsterdam Berlin says:

"Results of the campaign in the western war area are still indecisive."

GERMANS OCCUPY GHENT IN FORCE

The Pallada was one of the three cruisers of the Bayan class, of 7775 tons, carrying a crew of 570 officers and men. She was eight years old and was rated among the effective cruisers of the Baltic fleet. Her main battery consisted of two 8-inch guns and eight 6-inch guns.

This action was taken because the Mikado of Japan had communicated his desire that such persons be spared.
